

Futures Without Violence Seeking Amazing Intern

Futures Without Violence is a dynamic national organization in San Francisco committed to preventing violence against women and children around the world. We're looking for a dedicated, energetic, and creative individual to assist in the creation and development of Web content for our site, collateral media and social networking platforms.

INTERNSHIP SUMMARY:

The digital communications/social media intern will support the communications department by writing content to expand the scope of our organization's website and social media outreach. Related tasks will include researching cause-related topics, as well as potential media and promotional partnerships. This is a great opportunity to expand your portfolio of original writing and digital skills.

The cliched "team player" requirement holds true here, as you'll be collaborating with multiple teams in our offices in San Francisco, Boston, and Washington DC. The ideal candidate has a knack for organization and multi-tasking.

Internship will be completed over a 12 week consecutive period between February and April, 2012, with the possibility of extending. Intern is expected to work 10 hours per week.

Course credit at an accredited institution is available through this internship.

THINGS YOU SHOULD BE/HAVE:

- College student looking for credits or recent grad looking for experience
- Some digital media experience (college internships or professional), or the desire to learn it in a fast-paced environment
- Strong written/verbal communication skills
- Strong MS office skills
- Experience working at a publisher, network or agency a plus
- Keen understanding of and interest in news and marketing happenings
- Discerning eye for presentation and aesthetics
- Basic skills mastered in Google Docs, Powerpoint, and Excel
- Organized to the Nth degree with enviable calendar keeping abilities

- Uncanny attention to detail, unrivaled time management skills
- Comfortable collaborating with multiple groups to accomplish tasks and projects
- Creative problem solver
- Sense of humor is mandatory
