Because domestic and sexual violence and human trafficking are prevalent, assume that there are survivors among us.

• Take care of yourself first.
• Respect confidentiality.
• All voices are needed and welcome.
Learning Objectives

As a result of this presentation, you will be better able to:

- Identify the ways in which human trafficking can intersect with domestic violence and sexual assault
- Apply principles of equity in supporting survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault and human trafficking (DV/SA/HT)
- Identify strategies to support survivors of human trafficking within domestic and sexual assault organizations, and in collaboration with others in your community.
Human Trafficking Intersections & Vulnerability

- Sexual Exploitation
- Low Access to Healthcare
- Child Abuse & Runaway Youth
- Low Literacy
- Dating Violence
- Immigrant Status
- Systems of Oppression & Discrimination
- Intimate Partner Violence
- Sexual Assault/Harassment
- Poverty
- Homelessness
- Labor Exploitation
Chat Question

What are some possible similarities between the experiences of domestic violence, sexual assault, and human trafficking survivors?
Similarities in Experiences of Trafficking, Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Survivors

- Physical violence
- Restrictions on freedom of movement, control, isolation
- Financial control and dependence
- Intimidation, fear
- Fostering of drug and alcohol dependencies
- Similar elements of power and control and victimization
- Perpetrators may use relationship of trust to their advantage

It is not uncommon in federal trafficking prosecutions for the trafficker to be the husband, boyfriend, or romantic partner of the victim. (Human Trafficking Legal Center, 2018)
Why are Trafficked Survivors Referred to Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Organizations?

- In rural communities, DV/SA organization may be the only crisis/housing/social service agency
- Response to community outreach efforts
- Do not trust law enforcement
- Do not identify as “trafficked”
- May also be survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault
What is Equity?
To be truly effective, a comprehensive approach to protection, and—most of all—prevention must embed racial justice and equity across its policies and programs.

Improving equity is to promote justice, impartiality and fairness within the procedures, processes, and distribution of resources by institutions or systems.
Inequities Before Trafficking Occurs

- Poverty or greater need for basic resources
- High rates of discrimination
- Increased experiences of violence and trauma (current and/or historical)

Inequities While Being Trafficked

- Limited availability of resources that are culturally or linguistically appropriate
- Fear of not being believed or being seen as a criminal (not a victim)
- Increased experiences of criminalization for activities that occur as a result of being trafficked
- Service providers not looking like or having the same cultural background as the populations being trafficked
Implicit Bias

- We form implicit bias over time through the associations we build.

- Biases are internal messages about our society and are not necessarily our intent. However, our biases can cause harm to others.

- It is important to recognize when we are more susceptible to acting on our biases, such as in moments of high stress, uncertainty, or subjectivity.
Addressing Implicit Bias

- It’s imperative that professionals collaborate and understand there is a purpose and place for everyone
- We are all working toward common goals
- Establish working relationships
- Professionalism and attitude is key to ensuring survivor engagement
- Myth: “We aren’t equipped to serve human trafficking victims”
Oppression in Service Delivery

- Dysfunctional rescuing
- Blaming the victim
- Avoidance of contact
- Denial of differences
- Denial of political significance of difference/oppression
Poll: Testing Your Knowledge

Which of the following is an example of systematic oppression at play in a service agency?

- Refusing to provide services to a survivor based on racial, cultural, ethnic, religious, sexual, or other identity.
- Shying away from interaction with a particular client with a different cultural identity because they "don't have anything in common."
- Asserting that everyone is equal and that perceived differences are merely superficial.
- Attributing a client's poverty to bad choices.
- All of the above
Cultural Misinformation & Assumptions

- Culture affects violence, survival, services, and support.
- No culture is a monolith—there is diversity in every culture and social identity.
- Cultural assumptions are often used to justify mistreatment.
- Cultural misinformation and assumptions can prevent equitable access to services.
- Cultural humility ensures best efforts toward increasing accessibility of services.
Cultural Inclusivity

The provision of culturally appropriate and immediately available services based on the unique needs and circumstances of victims and survivors. Services are specific, client-focused and driven by the individuals impacted by the abuse, assault, exploitation.
Collaborating with Culturally Specific Agencies

- Identify culturally specific agencies in your area and community needs.
- Ask if they would be willing to provide a training about their work, the population they serve, and/or on cultural sensitivity.
- Offer training on your organization’s area of focus and services.
- Emphasize mutual beneficial and peer-to-peer approaches for solving shared challenges together.

❖ Strong relationships increase comfort level in making referrals.
Inequities as a Survivor

- Religious preference of employer
- Requirements to have a clean criminal record
- Lack of opportunities for full-time employment with benefits
- Limited mentorships, coaching, or job training
Collaboration to Meet Community Needs
Possible Multidisciplinary Collaborative Partners To Help Support the Needs of Survivors

- Medical/Mental Health
- Law Enforcement
- Legal Services
- Social Services
- Culturally Specific Programs
- Faith Based
- Schools/Colleges
- Housing
- Advocacy
- Domestic/Sexual Violence Programs
The Power of Collaborative Relationships

Collaboration and coordination with multiple community partners is key.

- Build connections to link survivors with resources.
- Identify a single point of contact within each agency to ensure coordination of services.
- Draft and sign MOUs outlining roles & responsibilities.
- Develop referral mechanisms.
- Continue to check in and make adjustments as needed.
Different Types of Collaborations

- Interpersonal collaborations
- Interdisciplinary collaborations approach
- Multidisciplinary collaborations

https://youtu.be/chXsLtHqfdM
Meaningful Collaboration Across Movements

- Working towards a shared vision and mission
- Try to understand priorities of the work of others and acknowledge differences
- Realize there may be professional “cultural” differences and priorities
- Acknowledge need for cross-training and cross-accessibility
- Clarify confidentiality needs and limitations
Collaborative Structure Example

- Direct Service Providers
- Government Officials and Law Enforcement
- Community and Faith-based organizations
- Training and Education Organizations
Poll: Testing Your Knowledge

Which of the following are elements of a successful collaboration?

- Avoiding negative comments about team members.
- Addressing implicit bias between agencies and individuals.
- Cross-training other members of the collaboration to increase knowledge and understanding of each other's work.
- All of the above.
Equity Considerations

• Affirm people’s assets, communities, and identities by ensuring there is representation of service providers in the support you provide.

• Assess and change policies and procedures that affect communities negatively.

• Display information and images of people of all genders, races, and ethnicities.

• Collaborate with organizations supporting survivors from the Deaf, Hard of Hearing, DeafBlind, and disabilities community.
Are you ready for survivors of trafficking if they come to your program?

Build Your Capacity:

- Train and develop the skills of all staff, on the intersection of DV/SA/HT.
- Train staff on issues facing trafficking survivors, so they understand their needs and can identify their options.
- Get familiar with state and federal laws and regulations addressing trafficking, including reporting and benefits available for survivors.
- Develop interdisciplinary relationships and collaborate to provide effective and caring client services.
Collaboration and Support for Survivors Exchange

What collaboration and service practices have you developed to support the holistic needs of survivors with an equity lens?

Questions?
Important Take-Aways

- Many human trafficking survivors experience other types of violence, abuse, and trauma include DV and SA.
- For many communities, DV/SA advocacy or shelter programs are a main referral for HT clients and those experiencing HT/DV/SA.
- Listen to people and their interpretation of their culture. Consider context.
- Assess the cultural and linguistic competence and needs of your organization and systems.
- Meaningfully involve survivors in program development and planning and compensate them for their time and expertise.
